

Media Contact: UMMS Media Relations
media@umm.edu or 410-328-8919

TWO UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND COMMUNITY MEDICAL GROUP PRIMARY CARE PRACTICES MERGING IN BALTIMORE CITY

Baltimore, MD (October 31, 2016) – Two University of Maryland Community Medical Group (UM CMG) primary care practices in Baltimore City are merging, creating one 5,000 square-foot medical office with more than 30 clinicians providing care across multiple medical specialties.

Effective today, UM CMG’s existing Bolton Hill practice located on West Mount Royal Avenue has relocated to an expanded Heritage Crossing practice located at 312 N. Martin Luther King, Jr. Blvd., Suite 302. With the merger, the space for patients of both practices is doubled.

UM CMG – Primary Care at Heritage Crossing offers a range of health care services including checkups, flu vaccinations, care for minor illnesses and injuries, health screenings and ongoing management of health issues such as heart disease, diabetes and asthma. In addition to primary care services and care coordination, the Heritage Crossing practice includes clinicians specializing in neurology, psychiatry, psychology and rheumatology and on-site laboratory services. Heritage Crossing is a Patient Centered Medical Home practice, designated by the National Committee for Quality Assurance, as it focuses on patient-centered, coordinated care that provides accessible services to patients.

“We are excited to provide this expanded primary care practice, both in size and number of providers, to take care of residents of West Baltimore and the surrounding area,” said Lawrence Linder, MD, president and chief executive officer of University of Maryland Community Medical Group.

UM CMG is holding an Open House on November 17, 5 – 7 pm. at the Primary Care at Heritage Crossing practice. Community members can meet the practice’s doctors, tour the newly renovated office, participate in free health screenings and education and enjoy refreshments.

UM CMG currently consists of community-based provider practices from UM Baltimore Washington Medical Center, UM Charles Regional Medical Center, UMMC Midtown Campus and UM Shore Regional Health. A list of UM CMG providers is available at <http://docfind.umms.org/cmig>.

About the University of Maryland Community Medical Group

The University of Maryland Community Medical Group (UM CMG) is a multi-hospital, multi-specialty, community-based physician-led group, and part of the University of Maryland Medical System. With more than 300 primary care physicians, specialists, and advanced practice clinicians in more than 75 locations across the state, UM CMG offers patients a vast network of highly experienced providers, delivering care right in their neighborhood. For more information, visit www.umcmg.org.

###