We've picked a DAISY!

University of Maryland
St. Joseph Medical Center is proud to present the DAISY
Award to Psychiatric Nurse Vivian

Echeverria Quiroga, RN.

DAISY winner
Vivian Echeverria
Quiroga, RN,
proudly poses
with her award.

Vivian was recognized for her exceptional empathy and responsiveness. Her perceptiveness and timely offer of support when she sensed that her help was needed made a huge difference in a patient's recovery.

From patient A. S.:

During my time in the hospital, as someone coping with trauma, I was unintentionally triggered by a concept Vivian was teaching during a group session, so I quietly exited the room. Noticing this, Vivian made it a point to quietly pull me aside later, before I was discharged, to speak with me about my experience. She let me know of her concern for my well-being, and took the time to review the coping skills I had missed during her session. By just reaching out, Vivian helped make my transition from hospitalization to home much less stressful.

Thank you, Vivian!
