

MARCH 2024

We've picked a DAISY!

DAISY winner
Jennifer
Marsheck, RN,
proudly poses
with her award.

University of Maryland St. Joseph
Medical Center is proud to present the DAISY Award to Nurse Jennifer
Marsheck, RN.

Jennifer was recognized by a patient's wife, who praised her for her diligence in providing exceptional care and communication throughout her husband's hospital stay.

From M. H.:

My husband had major surgery recently. Jennifer was his nurse for the first three days. The thing that stood out was her communication style.

She was clear compassionate and took time.
That, unfortunately, is the thing that has been lacking in my husband's hospital stays elsewhere, where we found it very hit-or-miss to get vital information. But Jennifer was very helpful, no matter what she was doing, or how far into her shift she was.

Hospital stays can be traumatic times for patients and families, and nurses like Jennifer, with her knowledge and bedside manner, are a blessing beyond measure. The world needs more nurses like her and more medical providers who place greater priority and effort into communicating with respect and empathy with patients and staff.

Thank you, Jennifer.
