

SOS

Survivors Offering Support

at The Cancer Institute at University of Maryland St. Joseph Medical Center

Your breast cancer experience can bring strength and hope to someone else.

Please consider becoming an SOS mentor.

As a breast cancer survivor, you can make a big difference—and a very personal impact—in the fight against breast cancer. Our Survivors Offering Support (SOS) program matches survivor mentors with those who have just received a breast cancer diagnosis, to help give our patients the personalized support they need to achieve a full and lifelong recovery.

Mentor volunteers receive free training, offered throughout the year.

Make your difference, starting today...Become an SOS mentor!

To learn more, contact Susan Feild, RN, BSN, CN-BN, at 410-427-5509 or email susanfeild@umm.edu.