

CLIMB[®]

Children's Lives Include Moments of Bravery

FOR CHILDREN WHO HAVE A PARENT WITH CANCER

The Kaufman Cancer Center and Cancer LifeNet are hosting CLIMB, a free support program for children who have a parent experiencing cancer. Developed by The Children's Treehouse Foundation, this program can help reduce the family burdens of dealing with cancer.

- Class now forming for summer
- Kaufman Cancer Center,
Streett Conference Room

BENEFITS INCLUDE:

- Learning about cancer and its treatment in an age appropriate, fun and sensitive way
- Understanding that feelings of sadness, anger and fear are normal and it's still OK to have fun and be a kid
- Activities that help kids discover their personal and family strengths for coping
- New ways to express and manage emotions that are hard to have
- Opening up family communication about what is happening and how kids are feeling

Cancer LifeNet
A Lifeline of Support

CLIMB is fun for kids, reassuring for parents and FREE for all who participate.

Registration is required by calling 1-866-393-4355.